

RAND FINDS INVESTMENT
IN STUDENT
MENTAL HEALTH
PAYS OFF

*Among community college students, the net benefit is estimated to be $11.39 for each dollar invested.

According to a recent RAND evaluation, student mental health programs decrease college drop out rates and contribute to graduate success. Students, schools and all of California will benefit from each dollar invested in prevention and early intervention programs by the California Mental Health Services Authority (CaMHSA).